supervisor_max_clients

Synopsis

supervisor_max_clients = clients

Clients is the maximum number of network messages a thread is allowed to service before dying. By increasing this number, the administrator is able to reduce the overhead of threads which re-spawn. The penalty however, is the inability to release unused memory quickly.

Example

supervisor_max_clients = 128

Defaults

32

See Also

How the supervisor controls its thread count supervisor_max_threads supervisor_idle_threads